How To Meet More Women In One Night Than Most Men Meet In A Year

Why do some men have no problems meeting eligible women?

There is a secret pool of women waiting to meet you. And they are everywhere. You have tried the available ways to meet women: online dating, bars, work, church and introductions by friends.

You may have bought courses on how to pick up women.

Where has that gotten you?

How much money and time have you spent?

How many potential partners have you met?

There is a far easier way that has been available forever.

You have probably dismissed it for various reasons: Partner dancing is the source of desirable women that is hidden in plain sight.

It has always been there and you haven't noticed or considered it.

You may want to rethink this idea before you move on.

Not all dancing is the same and even if you think you have no natural aptitude for dancing, you can pick and choose which dance best suits your aptitude and available time.

And this resource works regardless of age- whether you are 18 or 80.

When a friend of mine went to Australia on vacation, he looked up where the local ballroom dances were held. Since he is a good dancer, he was immediately in demand when the women noticed how well he danced. At the end of the evening the women approached him and asked where he would be going to dance next. They wanted to follow him.

And the same pattern repeated itself as he traveled through Asia, Europe, North America or South America.

If you don't have the time or inclination to learn the various ballroom dances, you can focus on one of the specialized dances such as salsa or Argentine tango. There are subcultures in most major cities that focus on these individual dances. If you enjoy getting up close and personal, Argentine tango is for you. If you like a high-energy dance, try salsa.

Why It Makes Sense to Learn To Dance

There are several life-long advantages to knowing how to dance:

- You want to make best use of the limited time you have to socialize.
- Dancing is a skill that you will have for the rest of your life
- Once you have learned a dance, you can teach it to women you meet.
- Taking a date to a dance is something that most women love.

- You can find places to dance in most major cities throughout the world.
- When you travel, dancing gives you instant access to a community of like-minded people. It is easy to socialize and make friends anywhere.
- Dancing complements your other social skills. Taking a date to dances, even if she doesn't know how to dance, will make you popular.
- It is a fairly economical way to get to know someone and meet new people. The admission cost to dance halls is reasonable, even for people on a budget. Compare that with the cost of dinner at a decent restaurant where you often struggle to keep the conversation going, spend a lot of money and at the end of the evening you may not know the women any better than at the start of the evening. The dance hall is a microcosm of humanity and there is always something to do and talk about.
- You don't need to have a charismatic personality or be fearless to be a good dancer. You don't have to be the alpha male who is ultra-cool. In fact, simply being quiet and friendly is a plus. Being too outgoing can work against you on the dance floor.
- You don't need to use any of the techniques promoted in the pick-up community on the dance floor.
- Dancing can lead to romance and lasting friendships.
- It provides the health benefits of exercise and psychological benefits of socializing.
- If leaning to dance is a stretch for you, that is a good thing. Getting out of your comfort zone is always a courageous act.

- There is almost always a shortage of men who know how to dance.
